COUNTY OF INYO

In re the Matter of the

L.L. Nunn Trust for the benefit of Deep Springs College under the Deed of Trust dated November 5, 1923,

Case No. SI CV PM 1253232

DECLARATION OF KINCH HOEKSTRA IN OPPOSITION TO PETITION FOR MODIFICATION OF PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

DATE: April 26, 2013
TIME: 9:00 AM
DEPT: 4
JUDGE: Hon. Dean T. Stout

ACTION FILED: February 6, 2012

I, Kinch Hoekstra , declare:

1. The facts set forth in this declaration I know to be true of my own personal knowledge, except where such facts are stated to be based on information and belief, and those facts I believe to be true. If called to testify in this matter, I could and would testify competently to the matters set forth in this declaration.

2. On December 22, 2012, I received a voice message, text, and email in quick succession from Dave Hitz, Petitioner and Chair of the Board of Trustees of Deep Springs College. In all three, he asked me to call him. I did so that day. Mr. Hitz quickly got to the point, which was to ask me to resign from the Board. He made clear to me that he believed that I should resign given our divergence of views about coeducation and the current legal action. It is my belief that Mr. Hitz hoped that I would resign so that he could ask the Court to dismiss the Objection and Response and supporting documents due to lack of standing.

3. I insisted that I would not resign, and told Mr. Hitz that all of my decisions as a Trustee had to be taken in light of my understanding of my fiduciary obligations, and that that included the decision about whether to resign; I stated that in my view my fiduciary obligations precluded resignation in the circumstances. Mr. Hitz said that if I did not resign, I would be voted off of the Board, and he said that it would be better for everyone if I resigned rather than having the other Trustees vote me off of the Board. I said that I did not believe that they could vote me off of the Board, as they did not have adequate justification for doing so.

4. I have been a faithful and hard-working member of the Board of Trustees. I was Secretary of the Board, was Chair of one of the two main functional committees, the Budget and Operations Committee, and now serve on the Academic Affairs Committee. I have served on the Fundraising Committee, the Audit Committee, and a range of other committees of the Board. Before instigating the discussion of and vote on coeducation, Dave Hitz was favorably impressed with my work on the Board, and indeed asked me to serve as Vice Chair.

5. I believe that there is no reason whatsoever independent of the coeducation question for Mr. Hitz's desire for me to resign or his clear undertaking to remove me from the Board. I believe that I would have been voted off of the Board by now were it not for the terms of the injunction now in place.

6. A review of the Trustee Succession Policy indicates that there is a term limit in place for Trustees so that they only serve two full four-year terms. A true and correct copy of a draft of this policy, which was subsequently approved without correction, is attached hereto as Exhibit 1.

7. Attached hereto as Exhibit 2 is a true and correct copy of a community newsletter that I received from Deep Springs College by email on or about April 1, 2013, shortly after the most recent Trustees meeting that occurred in March 2013.

On December __ 2010, the Trustees of Deep Springs College adopted the following policies relating to the Board's functions: Policy for Trustee Succession (page 1), Policy for Orientation of New Members of the Board of Trustees (page 10), Policy for Ongoing Self Evaluation (page 11), and Policy for Long-Term Strategic Planning Cycles (page 12). Those policies are set forth below.

TRUSTEES OF DEEP SPRINGS COLLEGE

POLICY FOR TRUSTEE SUCCESSION

The Bylaws of Deep Springs College Corporation, Section 5.05 Election, Designation, and Term of Office of Trustees, establish the requirements for the election of trustees. The Trustees of Deep Springs College (TDS) have entrusted the responsibility in the first instance for searching for and nominating prospective trustees to the Succession and Agenda Committee under the leadership of the chair of TDS. The members of the Committee are the chair and vice chair of TDS, the chairs of the Academic Affairs and Budget and Operations committees, the president of the College, and the student elected as a trustee in the fall of his first year.

The Bylaws of the Corporation Section 5.03 Number and Qualification of Trustees outlines the composition of TDS as consisting of thirteen members, two of which must be representatives of the Deep Springs student body. In practice, ten are "at-large" trustees, and an eleventh space is reserved for a permanent representative of the Telluride Association. The latter is simply the elected president of TA, and the student trustees are selected according to the policy determined by the Deep Springs student body. This document therefore is concerned solely with the succession process relating to at-large trustees.

The following is a description of the Committee's practices for carrying out its responsibilities. It is not intended to be a comprehensive statement of all actions that might be taken in particular circumstances. The description is organized in five categories: (1) Search Process for Prospective Board Members, (2) Selection Criteria, (3) Review of Prospective Board Members, (4) Nomination and Election of New Board Members, and (5) Re-election of Board Members. The Succession and Agenda Committee together with the general counsel also takes responsibility for introducing new trustees to, and educating them about, the College and their duties, once elected.

This policy must be reviewed and re-approved by the Succession and Agenda Committee at least once every four years, or more frequently at the discretion of TDS, with the review taking whatever form the Committee deems most appropriate. Any changes to the policy must be submitted to TDS for approval.

I. Search Process for Prospective Board Members

During the fall of each year, one or more members of the Succession and Agenda Committee draft a trustee solicitation/nomination letter, which is approved by all members of the Committee, signed by the chair of TDS, and emailed to all constituents of the college for whom we have email addresses. A similar letter, drafted by Deep Springs President L. Jackson Newell and TDS chair Richard Cornelison in 1997, appears in Appendix A. The solicitation/nomination letter outlines the process for making nominations to the Succession and Agenda Committee and should always articulate the following points in some form:

*New Board members are considered only as vacancies arise, generally once or twice a year during the fall and spring.

*Board members are selected based on changing circumstances to meet the different needs of the Board at different times. Not all with an interest in serving can be selected.

*Board service, though non-remunerative and done on a volunteer basis, is essential to the long-term health of the institution. Contrast TDS activities with those of the traditional private board model; stress that TDS is a working board.

*Nominations should take the form of (1) the candidate's biographical sketch (including three references) and (2) an optional statement of one page or less elaborating on the candidate's interest in Board membership. The nominator should also provide a record of the candidate's service on other boards, including specific areas of experience or expertise at the board level (e.g. strategic planning, programmatic design or operations).

*All nomination materials should be emailed to the chair of TDS, who will act as intermediary with the other members of the Succession and Agenda Committee.

*Self-nominations are encouraged. If one chooses to nominate someone else, the Committee requests that the nominator confirm the nominee's interest and availability first.

Trustees wishing to nominate candidates for Committee consideration should follow the nomination procedure outlined in the solicitation/nomination letter. Trustee nominee materials (candidate biographical sketch + optional statements of interest) should be stored in a central computer file managed and backed up by the chair of TDS or another willing member of the Succession and Agenda Committee formally designated by the chair to fulfill this role. New trustee nominees regarded by the Succession and Agenda Committee as especially promising candidates are also added to the "TDS Succession Pipeline" spreadsheet (see Appendix C) by either the chair of TDS or another willing member of the Committee. Preferably, initial nominations should not be fielded verbally during meetings of the Succession and Agenda Committee without the nominee's biographical sketch and optional statement of interest being filed beforehand.

The Succession and Agenda Committee has the option of making the "TDS Succession Pipeline" and potential nominee materials available to the entire Board, on the condition that nominee names and information remain confidential within the Board. Any member of the Committee may recommend that this option be considered once prior to each Board vacancy. This may follow the request of a trustee not on the Committee, but only Committee members may formally make the recommendation to the Committee. If such a recommendation is brought, the issue is decided through email or in-person Committee deliberation followed by a majority vote. Whatever the Committee decides becomes the default policy at the time of the next vacancy.

II. Selection Criteria

The Succession and Agenda Committee focuses on candidates with a demonstrated understanding and commitment to the mission of Deep Springs, including but not limited to the Nunnian vision of student self-governance. All prospective trustees must be able and willing to attend two TDS meetings a year at Deep Springs, and to maintain year-round engagement in TDS functions through email and teleconference. Each new appointment is intended to enhance the overall capabilities of the Board as a whole, such that the Board has expertise in higher education, engineering, law, government relations, management, finance, farm/ranch operations, fund-raising and institutional development. In addition to demonstrated abilities in specific functional areas, the Succession and Agenda Committee also seeks to maintain a balance of other attributes among Board members, including:
(1) type of relationship and/or experience with Deep Springs (including alumni status, with further preference for those who have performed alumni volunteer service)
(2) ability and willingness to contribute financially
(3) ethnicity and gender
(4) geographical location

Special priority has been given to maintaining a critical mass of alumni on the Board in order to ensure that those in control of the college's future understand its history from a student's point of view. The Committee endeavors to ensure staggered terms of office and continuity in Board service, by sometimes filling a partially completed term for the remainder of that term and beyond. Entering Board members who are chosen to fill a partially completed term of two years or more may serve no more than one complete additional term to prevent excessive tenures.

III. Review of Prospective Board Members

The "TDS Succession" and "Succession Pipeline" spreadsheets are the primary tools that the Succession and Agenda Committee uses to track the composition and membership needs of the Board. Committee members also use "Succession Committee Record Sheets" to evaluate individual nominees in preparation for inner Committee nominations and comparative deliberation upon nominees. Brief descriptions of each document follow:

i. The "TDS Succession" Spreadsheet

The Succession and Agenda Committee uses the "TDS Succession" spreadsheet to track the membership terms for each Board member, allowing the Committee to anticipate vacancies and begin considering new candidates in a timely fashion. Appendix B shows an example of the spreadsheet taken from March 2010.

ii. The "TDS Succession Pipeline" Spreadsheet

The Succession and Agenda Committee keeps a record of all who have been nominated as potential candidates for TDS membership using the "TDS Succession Pipeline" spreadsheet. By design, this records only minimal information about each candidate, including their name, DS year (if applicable), contact information, and nominator name and contact information (if other than self). Appendix C shows the template that the Committee uses to codify the "TDS Succession Pipeline."

iii. The "Succession Committee Record Sheet" Template

To allow each member of the Succession and Agenda Committee to form his or her own opinion of each nominee, all potentially subjective information about nominees is tracked by individual Committee members on confidential "Succession Committee Record Sheets." Information tracked includes each nominee's (1) area(s) of expertise, (2) previous DS service, (3) previous other service, (4) level of commitment, (5) donation potential, and (6) other notes (e.g. status as parent or former faculty, expressed prior interest in Board membership, unavailability until a certain date). The "Record Sheet" template appears in Appendix D.

In advance of each vacancy, the chair of TDS emails all members of the Board to prepare optional comments regarding particular qualities desired in a new trustee. A brief discussion is then held on the matter during an Executive Session of a TDS meeting before members of the Succession and Agenda Committee make individual nominations within the Committee, as described below. Ideally, this discussion should occur during the TDS meeting before the Committee deliberates upon whom to nominate to the Board at-large, or two meetings before the elected candidate begins Board service.

At least six months in advance of each Board vacancy, the complete file of trustee nominee materials (biographical sketch(s) + optional statements of interest), updated "TDS Succession Pipeline," and "TDS Succession Committee Record Sheet" template is emailed to all members of the Succession and Agenda Committee by whomever manages each file. Each member of the Succession and Agenda Committee is allotted one or two trustee nominations per vacancy to be drawn from the "TDS Succession Pipeline" and brought to the Committee by a deadline set by the chair of TDS. Each nomination should reflect (a) consideration of the needs of the Board at the time of the vacancy and (b) comparative evaluation of the nominee within the entire pool of prospective nominees. The deadline for nominations to the Committee should be no later than two weeks in advance of Committee deliberation on the nominated candidates. The chair should further aim to structure the nomination and review timeline so that deliberation upon candidates can occur in person during TDS meetings.

Before nominating candidates to the Committee, the chair and other members of the Committee may also arrange to meet candidates in person or talk with them as practicable. The purpose of these meetings is not only to acquaint the Committee members with the candidate, but also to inform candidates of what TDS membership entails. These meetings may include other trustees. Whoever is meeting with a candidate for this purpose is asked to email all members of TDS with the time and location of the meeting so that any who wish may attend. Informal contact may also be made with individuals whom candidates have worked with for reference.

Committee members are notified of each other's nominations at least two weeks in advance of Committee deliberation on candidates, so that each member can review other nominees' materials. Nominees are then discussed within the Committee either in person or by teleconference to the end of selecting a nominee for consideration by the Board at-large. Committee members may withdraw their nominations during discussion as deemed fit. If consensus on a single candidate is not reached by the end of discussion, a nominee is determined by a voting procedure to be determined by the Committee chair.

Candidates are to be contacted by a member of the Succession and Agenda Committee (usually the chair of TDS) to have their availability for Board membership assessed before being nominated by the Committee. Prospective candidates who, upon being contacted, express interest in serving at a later date are kept in the "Succession Pipeline" and reviewed intermittently as vacancies arise.

IV. Nomination and Election of New Board Members

The Succession and Agenda Committee has been charged with formally nominating candidates for membership in TDS. Election of candidates to TDS and bestowal of voting rights for a four-year term, however, has required a simple majority vote of the entire Board. Once a candidate is formally nominated by the Committee, his or her biographical sketch and optional statement of interest is circulated to TDS as a whole for consideration. Board deliberation and the final vote upon the nominee then occurs via email, teleconference, or in person during an Executive Session of a TDS meeting. The members of the Succession and Agenda Committee may be called upon during these meetings to explain the reasons for a candidate's nomination and to answer questions from the other members of TDS.

V. Re-election of Board Members

Trustees are elected to a single four-year term or in some instances a single four-year term plus a short part-term to maintain staggered terms. If a short part-term is two years or more in length, the trustee in question may not serve more than one additional term. Barring this circumstance, TDS has agreed that the Board may request that a trustee agree to serve an additional, full second term. Before the conclusion of each trustee's term, the chair of TDS inquires as to whether the trustee would like to serve another. If the trustee wishes to serve a second term, the chair of TDS emails the Board well in advance of the term's conclusion to solicit optional confidential comments about the trustee serving the additional term. The Succession and Agenda Committee then review these comments and deliberate upon whether or not the trustee should be offered another term, deciding their recommendation to TDS as a whole by majority vote. This recommendation should be kept confidential among the trustees not under consideration. With the Committee's recommendation in mind, TDS deliberates and casts the final majority vote on whether the trustee should be offered a second term.

DYER, NV 89010-9803

July 12, 1997

Dear Deep Springer:

Re: Nomination of Trustees

The Trustees of Deep Springs would be pleased to hear from alumni and non-alumni who may wish to be considered for appointment to the board of trustees.

Our purpose in writing is to assure that a wide range of capable individuals are considered for the important tasks of trusteeship.

Trustees are normally appointed for a term of four years, renewable for an additional four years, at the option of the board. A set of bylaws govern the operation of the board. Please write President Jack Newell if you would like a copy of these bylaws.

Mr. Nunn considered the ideal board to be two lawyers, two engineers, two businessmen, and two with academic backgrounds, plus a student body trustee. The board now has 13 members, including two student trustees, and the composition of the board continues to be along the lines of Mr. Nunn's ideal.

If you wish to be considered, please share your background with us on two pages or less and tell us why you might be interested in serving. If you wish to nominate an alumnus or non-alumnus, please provide as much information about him or her as you can. Please forward your response to Dr. Christopher N. Breiseth, Chair, Succession Committee, c/o Trustees of Deep Springs. Please address any questions you may have to Jack Newell or me.

Trustees meet at Deep Springs starting at 8:00 AM on a Friday, through Saturday night, once in June or July and once in October or November. In addition there typically may be an hour's conference call every other month, as well as demanding committee assignments.

Trustees are expected to give generously of their time and talent, as well as their wit, wisdom and wealth, as well as serve as a guide and inspiration to others.

With thanks for helping us with this important activity,

Richard Cornelison, Chair
Trustees of Deep Springs

TRUSTEES OF DEEP SPRINGS COLLEGE

POLICY FOR ORIENTATION OF NEW MEMBERS OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Upon election to the Board, new members will be given a copy of the "gray book", entitled the "Constitution of Deep Springs & The Deed of Trust," which contains not only the College's foundational documents but also guiding correspondence of the College's founder, LL Nunn.

New members will also be given a copy of the Trustee Handbook (or provided with the site from which to download it), which delineates the trustees' rights and responsibilities as trustees and orients them towards the philosophy, purpose, and general function of Deep Springs.

In addition, new members will be given acess to the Deep Springs Handbook for Students, Faculty, and Staff, and encouraged to read, at a minimum, the sections entitled Introduction to Deep Springs and General Information.

New members are expected to familiarize themselves with these documents before their first meeting as an elected trustee.

The chairman, vice chairman, and chairs of the standing committees are responsible for mentoring new members, helping them understand their role in reference to the college as a whole. In the case of the student body trustees, the current student body trustees are responsible for fulfilling that role. Among other things, new trustees will be taken upon a tour of the premises.

The College's general counsel or his designee will conduct orientation sessions for new trustees, and those who may want a refresher, at the semi-annual meetings of the Board. These sessions will include a discussion of the trustees' responsibilities under the College's governing documents and California law.

TRUSTEES OF DEEP SPRINGS COLLEGE

POLICY FOR ONGOING SELF EVALUATION

Broadly, the responsibilities of the Trustees of Deep Springs College ("TDS") encompass fulfilling the mission of the College, maintaining the robust viability and sustainability of the College, enhancing and protecting the financial and physical assets of the College, advancing the quality and reputation of the College's educational program, and ensuring actualization of student body self-governance.

Every other year at the autumn TDS meeting, the Trustees will engage in a group discussion evaluating their performance as a governing entity as to responsible levels of oversight of the College's finances and business operations, executive leadership, and fiduciary responsibilities. These areas of responsibilities are articulated in the goals and procedures of two of the College's standing committees, the Budget and Operations Committee and the Academic Affairs Committee. This discussion may also include assessment of strengths and synergies of the board composition, areas of weakness or deficiency, board succession planning, oversight of executive leadership, and revisions to the self-evaluation process.

This discussion shall be informed by a written self-reflection completed by each Trustee on his or her trustee service and fulfillment of responsibilities; it may also include areas of service or actions the Trustee desires to engage in. Each Trustee is encouraged to also provide written reflection on fellow Trustees and TDS as a whole. These, too, shall inform the TDS group discussion. These written submissions shall be provided to the Chair who will share or distribute them as appropriate and use them to facilitate the discussion. This ongoing self-evaluation by TDS is intended to foster a sense of community in which the Trustees feel comfortable participating in both self and communal reflection with the purpose of governing well.

Additionally, there is frequent informal communication between Trustees about supporting and contributing to the mission of Deep Springs, and executing Trustee responsibilities in an optimized fashion.

TRUSTEES OF DEEP SPRINGS COLLEGE

POLICY FOR LONG-TERM STRATEGIC PLANNING CYCLES

This document describes the long term strategic planning process for Deep Springs. It should be revised occasionally with the most recent version kept in the Trustee Handbook.

In guiding board activity, the Succession and Agenda committee tries to keep a balance between short-term oversight and long-term strategy and vision.

The foundation of the strategic planning process is a list of "Top 5 strategic threats and opportunities". For each board meeting, the Succession and Agenda committee chooses one strategic issue – possibly two – for careful consideration. Usually it is an item from our Top 5 list, but sometimes it will be a related topic like board self-assessment.

Every two or three years we devote the strategy portion of a meeting to updating the top 5 list itself. Ahead of that meeting we ask each board member, as well as a faculty representative, a staff representative, and the president, to answer the following question: "Over the next three to five years, what are the top five biggest threats or opportunities for the college in achieving its mission?"

Since the question is based on our mission, the first step in our meeting is to revisit the mission. What does it mean to each of us? Do the words capture our intent? Should we update the mission, or reaffirm the current version?

Next, we ask each person to talk through their list, giving context to each of their five. A small team consolidates the lists, combining related ideas or splitting apart overly broad ones, and then the board and president vote on the top 5.

By its very nature, strategy involves dealing with diverse and complex issues, so there is no fixed method for handling a strategic item when we do focus on it. In some cases, reviewing a report from the college staff or a board sub-committee may be appropriate. In other cases, the board as a whole may want to wrestle with the issue to give direction. A community wide session during the board meeting may be useful to gather input.

The output of a strategy session is likewise variable. It may be a report or resolution clarifying the board's position on the topic. It may lead to changes in how the college or the board itself operates. In some cases, the act of inspecting the strategy work of the president and staff may be all that is needed.

NEWS & ISSUES

- The Trustees of Deep Springs College met in the Valley for their spring meeting over the weekend of March 23. Major business of the weekend included re-electing Dave Hitz '80 to the Board, reappointing David Neidorf to another term as President, and recommitting to pursue a coeducational future for the College. Please see the website for further details: http://www.deepsprings.edu/news and events/college
- Ranch Manager Janice Hunter and Deep Springs College have been named District Permittee of the Year by the National Forest Service. Congratulations to Janice, and many thanks for all her hard work! Read more about how the award was earned on our website: http://www.deepsprings.edu/news and events/college
- Deep Springs is currently hiring a full time Bookkeeper/Office Manager to start in early summer. If you or someone you know is interested the position, please visit our website for full details: http://www.deepsprings.edu/employment
- Members of the Cornell Branch of the Telluride Association visited last week as part of an ongoing exchange between TA and Deep Springs. While here, they attended classes, participated in labor, and graced the community with an interpretive dance rendition of G.W.F. Hegel's Phenomenology of Right at the most recent DSPAC. We're looking forward to seeing them again at the TA Convention here this summer!
- Deep Springs has received many replies from this year's female applicants with regard to the ruling in the coeducation suit. These are now available for download on the website. All letters are published anonymously, and consent has been obtained from their authors. http://www.deepsprings.edu/news and events/coeducation.

- Congratulations to alumnus William vanden Heuvel '46 for receiving the Queen's Commissioner Medal of Merit of the Province of Zeeland in The Netherlands. The award, bestowed by Queen's Commissioner Karla Peijs, recognizes Mr. vanden Heuvel for being "a driving force... that is exemplary of the good relations between the United States and the Netherlands."
- The Applications Committee has finished up its work, and is releasing admissions decisions April 1st.
- The Deep Springs Resource Management Team met last week to review our ranch and farm operations. The College would particularly like to thank RMT member Glenn Harris for his decades of exemplary service; Glenn is retiring this year, and was honored with a board resolution during the weekend's meeting.
- The Deep Springs community bids a sad farewell to two of its members – Bill Mack '68 and Bruce Laverty '43 both recently passed away. Bill was a respected lawyer in the Bay Area who cherished fond memories of his time as dairy boy here at Deep Springs. Bruce is remembered for his service as a trustee and his contributions to the hydroelectric plant. They will both be deeply missed. Please see our website for obituaries (Bill's is forthcoming), and contact Laura Marcus at lmarcus@deepsprings.edu for information on where to direct condolences.
- Filmmaker Andrew Rossi visited for a few days this past week. He will be filming aspects of Deep Springs life for inclusion in a documentary on higher education.
